Jane Kitson has come to our school for several years now. Each and every time she comes the children are mesmerized by her fun presentation. She uses both quiet and active tactics to keep their attention and the children are always learning something new. The last visit she made to our school, she left the building during carpool time. All of the children wanted to say "goodbye" and touch "Mother Goose." She leaves them anxiously waiting for the next visit. I have also had the privilege of working with Jane as she trains teachers. She gives the teachers fun, practical, and simple ideas for finger plays, classroom management, and songs that keep the children's attention. The teachers leave excited and anxious to go back to their classrooms to use what they have learned. Jane takes the term "hands-on" to heart and shows that in each of her workshops.
